

Information about becoming a demonstrator with Stampin Up!

Thank you for your enquiry about joining Stampin Up and what it takes to become a demo.

It is a great time to join Stampin Up and the quarterly minimum sales target is £225 to remain an active demo (which is the net figure, actual catalogue product price to be sold/purchased is £270). Your first quarterly minimum needs to be reached at the end of a full quarter and if you join part way through a quarter you will be given till the end of the next quarter to reach your minimum.

If you join now your first quarterly minimum sales will be not need to be reached till the end of March 2015.

Here is an outline of the sales quarters –

January-March, April-June, July-September, October- December.

If for any reason you have not reached your quarterly minimum by the specified time you will be give one extra month to reach the £270 product sales to remain an active demo. If you do not do this you will no longer be considered a demo or have access to the demo website but there is nothing to pay back, nothing owing or any forfeits.

The more product you sell (either to yourself or customers) the more commission you can earn, You can host workshops or classes to earn extra commission and bonuses and you can even build a team of demo's and earn a living doing what you love!

To sign up as a demo you need to purchase the great value starter kit on special this week at £74.25 and the goods are in the starter kit are worth over £175. The new kit is fully customisable which means that you can choose ANY items of your choice to the value of £130 to make up your kit from any current catalogue. You will also receive a business supplies pack (valued at £45) and there are no shipping charges when you purchase the starter kit.

Once you become a demonstrator you get access to the demo website which has lots of ideas, resources and incentives as well as the opportunity to place your own orders and see your commissions etc. The first order you place within 45 days of signing up to be a demo of £150+ is eligible for 30% discount so another fantastic deal to purchase items at a huge discount!!

As part of this current deal, you will also earn 5% cash back on your commissionable sales in December, paid to you mid January when the commissions are paid direct into your bank account.

Within the first 6 months there is also an incentive called Stampin' Start where you can earn free stamp sets of your choice if you reach certain sales goals and recruiting goals.

On all orders placed you receive 20% discount off the net product total. (Take 20% off the catalogue product price to calculate the net figure.) You can earn more commission the more sales you make in a month and any extra commission payments are calculated at the end of the month and paid direct in the bank account of your choice mid way through the following month.

If you join me, I have a large team and will be on hand to help and support you. I have a dedicated blog for my downline which has lots of great resources and I email regularly with reminders about ordering incentives and tips for boosting your business. I also run monthly training (local to me in Buckinghamshire) and I also run a quarterly event in Croughton which is a great opportunity to get together to share ideas.

I have team members all over the UK and Holland and I appreciate that it is hard for some demos in my team to attend my trainings and events but I am available to chat on the phone and I am in regular contact via email with newsletters and reminders. I have made Stampin Up my business and am one of the top demonstrators in the UK.

We are a friendly and supportive group called the Pinkies and we also have a private facebook group where we share and support one another. I provide some useful tools to help you when you first get started such as a cardstock swatch and a welcome booklet explaining all the basics. I have loads of useful websites and resources to help you get inspired and making some beautiful items.

Stampin Up also has a dedicated helpline which can help with any queries you may have.

My ever expanding team called the Pinkies would love you to join us and here are some of the benefits of joining me and my team -

- Cardstock samples of all colours
- Bi-Monthly magazine from Stampin Up delivered direct to your door.
- Access to the SU demo website with the opportunity to place your own orders and track commissions etc
- As much help as you need from me.
- The chance to earn lots of free stamp sets.
- Monthly and quarterly training as well as Field Training run by Head Office and an annual convention.
- Facebook group for connecting with other members of the Pinkies
- An invite to join the Stampin Up worldwide forum called Stampin' Connection.

If you wish to join all you need to do is to complete the on-line application which can be found on the Become a Demo tab on my blog or at the bottom of my emails. As soon as Stampin Up receive your application and it has been approved (normally the same day) your starter kit will be ordered, the payment taken from the card details supplied on the form and a demo ID and log in will be emailed to you – It's really easy and such a great thing to be part of.

I am always happy to answer any questions or have a no pressure chat to see if the opportunity is right for you, so please don't hesitate to get in touch if you need anything at all.
